c' $795,000. This will be two-story with basement structure and will add 10,000 square feet of space.

The other will be an activities therapy building. It will be built near the present gymnasium and will replace that structure as the recreational center of the main institution. School officials say that the small gymnasium has proven entirely inadequate. The new activities building will be a two-story and basement structure providing 80,000 square ft. of floor space. Excluding the basement, the building will have all terrazo floors and will include academic classrooms, recreation rooms and an occupational therapy area. It will cost $1,353,000.

Plan One At Farm

Only one building will be erected on the 951-acre farm operated by the institution. This will be a security patient residential unit for problem patients. It will include training and recreational facilities, classrooms, and, with fixed equipment installed, will cost $1,031,000. Other buildings at the farm section are considered adequate, officials said. The farm was started in 1930 and has 25 buildings, most of the land is used for general farming purposes with produce used by the institution.

Lincoln State School was started in 1877 and at the present time has 5,200 patients ranging in age from infants to aged people who have spent their lifetime in the institution. It has 907 employees, most of whom live in Logan county, with an annual payroll of $3,556,000. The biennium appropriation for the institution was

Mayor Races Up Tuesday

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Attempts to oust incumbent mayors in several Illinois cities, including Aurora and Quincy, will be settled Tuesday in the spring's first round of municipal elections.

Jay L. Hunter, a retired high school principal, is giving Aurora's embattled Mayor Paul Egan a tough political battle.

Egan, who is seeking a third term, ran a poor second in the primary. Hunter outpolled him by more than 9,000 votes in a field of 10.

In Quincy, Wes Olson, a Republican businessman, is trying to turn veteran Democratic Mayor Leo Lenane out of office. Lenane has held the job 16 of the past 28 years.

Another Democratic mayor facing a determined challenger is Glen F. Kunkle of Freeport, making a bid for a fourth term. Opposing him is Joe D. Shelly, a Republican running in a predominately Republican city.

Peoria voters will settle a wide-open race for the job being vacated by Mayor Eugene Leiger. Former Democratic Mayor Joseph C. Malone and Republican Robert G. Day, a lawyer and political newcomer, have conducted a tough campaign.

He was the last of his family, having been preceded in death by his wife, sisters and four brothers. He leaves two nieces, Mrs. Floyd Steffens of Lincoln and Mrs. Frank Ryan of San Diego, Calif., and a nephew, James O'Laughlin of Lincoln.

WET

GALENA, Ill. (AP)—Voters of Little Woodbine Township decided to go "wet" Tuesday for the first time in 24 years.

The sale of alcoholic beverages has been prohibited in the Jo Daviess County township since 1937. The dry spell ended by a 183-159 vote.

The Rev. George Haram of Grace Evangelical United Brethren Church led a vigorous campaign for the "drys." His church — in plain view 100 feet from the polling place — sported a huge sign reading:

"Keep the stink out of distinction. Vote Yes (Dry). Neglected children, heartbroken

ARMINGTON — Bringing home

Production Cost High on List

With the average fixed cost for producing an acre of corn being about $60 per acre, increase production per acre is important now, more than ever according to Ralph Poynter, plant food specialist of Illinois Farm Supply company.

Poynter spoke Thursday night at Lincoln Christian church to 4-H members and their fathers attending the annual 4-H X-tra corn yield pancake and sausage supper. Other points cited by Poynter were in the placement of fertilizer in order to obtain high yields, and at the same time using a hybrid that is adapted to high population. To end up with a plant population of 16,000
plants, Poynter said that the average person would have to plant
about 20,000 kernels at planting
time.

Bill Votsmeier, manager of Logan County Farm Service, explained the part his company plays in the 4-H X-tra corn yield project — namely that the University of Illinois and the Logan Farm Service company are cosponsors.

Farm Adviser Harold Brink-meier showed slides of actual weed demonstration plots that he has directed in Logan county during the past two years. Various chemicals and their adaptability
to the control of both broad leaf weeds and grasses were discus-ed.

Rules and procedures for the extra corn yield project were explained by Assistant Farm Adviser Dorrence Brucker and he encouraged members to have demonstration plots which would be treated differently from the rest of the field. This would enable members to get the highest yields on their own particular field.

CHANGES HIS PLEA

Gary Shull, 18, of Lincoln, charged with burglary of the Melvin home Jan. 5, changed his plea from innocent to guilty and asked for probation in Logan County Circuit Court Thursday.

Judge Leland Simkins referred the request for probation to James Phelan, probation officer, and continued the hearing until April 25.

Shull has 20 indictments pending against him, including the burglary charge. He is being held in county jail.

CIVIL WAR SERIES: Despondency Noted in Soldier Craig Let

(Editor's note — The Courier continues its series revealing the letters of Samuel Craig, Atlanta soldier for the Union cause, which are furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Payne of the Hartsburg community.)

In a letter dated March 16, 1863, Sam tells Mattie: "We have been marching nearly all this month on scouts and I think we will leave for good but I don't know where we'll go to. We don't get to see any papers here. We have different reports. We hear that there is two armys in Kentucky, one to watch General Rosecrans and the other to do mischief."

Of conditions around Murfreesboro, Sam says: "All of the farms around here are open to all of the stock. All of the rails is burnt and some of the boys say they free the negroes among us but the boys don't like to hear such a fuss back at home. They think that they see enough of hardship down here. We would like to hear some of them talk down here like they do up there. They would hush in a short time."

Dust Replaces Mud

When Sam wrote Mattie on April 10 he asked that his writing be excused as "my hand trembles so bad I can hardly rite". He says, after the usual formalities: "We have very fine weather here. Now we have dust instead of mud. The boys is all in good spirits but don't like the idea of having our regt filled up with conscripts for there is an order issued to that effect now and it was read at dress parade last night. We have a great many court martials here in this army.

erected so strong that I would have little effect on our fatigue and guard very heavy but I am out at present as I am a for some of the officers cooking for Cap and w got killed I lost my place

Sam ends this letter of spondent note: "All of the edness that can be started world has full away here for a long time and if the do better that the world see that we were in early trying to do right He was us and peace would be and we that are depri homes could go to them (To be continued)

Vote Fraud Probe Looked As Possible

CHICAGO (AP) — A widespread investigation of alleged vote fraud last Nov. 3 appears possible with a 1 court go-ahead for an election more than 3,000 votes in.

Chief Justice Walter J. of the Illinois Supreme Court told a representative of Wexler, special prosecutor Cook County state's attorney, to draw up such a Thursday.

Schaefer said he probably sign the order Monday.

Due to Developments? Wexler's representative, ren L. Swanson, declined if recent developments prompted another probe.

Circuit Judge Cornelius Wexler referred Swanson Supreme Court Wednesday. Swanson asked permission to open seven voting machines were involved in the State's Atty. Benjamin Wexler's recount suit, before the Supreme Court. Adamowski, a Republican, lost the Nov. 3 election. P. Ward, a Democrat.

Wexler and a staff of have been investigating of widespread voting irregularities since last December. Wexler was appointed to by County Judge Thad Adesko and Chief Justice B. Austin of Criminal (Geta Workers Names).

Last Friday Wexler gave the names of 622 poll workers, appointees of the Court, whom he charged with vote fraud.

37 Barn Burns After Lightning 'Bullseye'

WAYNESVILLE — A large barn a mile and a half east of here was destroyed, with most of its contents, by fire early Saturday. Tenant Joe Wampler discovered the blaze when he awoke at 6 a.m. The loft was then ablaze.

A considerable quantity of hay and grain including 300 bushels of corn — was lost as were some hogs and chickens. A tractor standing near the barn was saved. The barn was on a farm owned by Mrs. Frank Ball of Clinton.
