Point Out How YOU Can Assist With United Fund

By U.F. BOOSTER
Many fine, new things have come to Lincoln in the past few years; new industry, new schools, a beautiful park, a swimming club, new stores, a city plan, zoning, new churches, and new homes. All these didn't just happen—they have one thing in common—they took a lot of work by a lot of people.

Many people have talked about having a United Fund in Lincoln. A number of these people have worked hard to make the United Fund a reality. Now is the time for action. The organization work is done, the first campaign is in progress. If we are to make this effort a success, each citizen must do his share, whether it be as a volunteer worker or in making his own pledge.

Goes to Hospitals

Logan county hospitals have been furnished 10,823 pints of blood in the 10 year period. Of this total, Abraham Lincoln Memorial hospital has received 6,469 pints and St. Clara's hospital 3,484 pints. Logan hospitals were also furnished 126 units of serum albumin, (five pints of whole blood are required to obtain one unit of serum albumin;) 205 units of frozen plasma, 23 units of packed cells, and 12 units of gamma globulin. These figures do not include blood provided for Logan county residents while hospitalized outside Logan. As can readily be seen, the county is barely holding its own in blood donated and blood furnished received.

Dr. D. M. Barringer, chairman of the Logan county Red Cross Blood Bank, has not set a goal for the 10th anniversary event, but an appropriate one would be to make 1961 the top year of the ten, he points out. The year 1957 heads the list thus far with 1,386 donors. Thus far in 1961, 960 have donated, meaning 427 donor are needed Friday to set a new one-year record.

The bloodmobile will set up Friday at the First Christian church with hours of operation from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

NASON ON EDUCATION:

Science Starts in Elementary Schools

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.
Professor of Education,
U. of S. California

There's a revolution brewing in our elementary schools! Children are bubbling with interest in science and their questions are "bugging" their teachers.

Today's children know facts that were only dreams when we went to school. Their world is full of rocket ships, jet aircraft, guided missiles and satellites. They know more about them than you might think.

Children have a vast ability to soak up information, especially when they are fascinated with a subject. They gather surprising bits of knowledge from toys, books, pictures, comic strips, newspapers, television and just asking questions. Before long they have accumulated an impressive store of facts.

Baffling Questions

Every parent knows that very young children can ask dazzling questions, especially about science. Many parents find them hard to answer. So do teachers!

But we had better answer them if we are to stimulate enough young scientists to match the Russians in this field.

There are good reasons why children are fascinated by science and learn a great deal about it. For one thing, children are always attracted by the exciting and impossible happenings in fairy stories and tales of magic. They still are. But today we are living in a world that's full of magic—real magic. The manned satellite has "out-flown" the flying carpet.

Adults are just as fascinated, but they approach it differently. We accept atomic energy and space flight as the work of scientists; interesting, but we don't expect to really understand them. The child, however, is the scientist or astronaut in his own imagination. He expects to understand!

What happens when our little astronaut goes to school? Is his consuming interest in science whetted, discussed and encouraged?

In the past—and too often even yet—our budding scientist was handed a primer with very little scientific content and taught to read. There's nothing wrong with that. But science, said the experts, must wait. Just as soon as you can read, write and do arithmetic we'll talk about it. Junior's rocket-powered interest in science never got off the pad. The countdown looked too long!

Today this is being changed. Junior is going to get science, but it may not be quite what he expected. It may not even be the kind of science he is most anxious and ready to learn.

Science an Afterthought

Science has been tacked to the elementary school curriculum as a sort of afterthought. Specific science subjects in the secondary schools were designed as college preparation. As the subject grew—and scientific knowledge has exploded—the sheer volume of material has forced some of it downward into elementary schools.

The things forced downward have been, by common consent, the simpler concepts: magnetism, simple mechanics, plants and animals, etc. This is perfectly reasonable and, in most cases, has led to good results. Pupils are interested and learn a great deal.

Recent research, however, points to ways in which we might get even better results. Properly presented, many concepts in electricity, magnetism, the solar system and even the structure and nature of atoms and molecules can be understood by 6 and 7-year-old youngsters.

The difficulty is with the presentation of the concepts. Incorrectly done it may be more confusing than educational. Properly handled, it can stimulate and encourage the scientific "spark" and keep it burning all the way through college.

What does it take?

First we need a plan for teaching science—one that places science in a logical sequence from kindergarten through high school. One that introduces each concept in a way and at a point where it will be succeed.

It also requires teachers who are trained to do this specialized job. If we develop a continuing science program we may even need special science teachers in elementary grades, at least until our regular classroom teachers develop the new skills they will need.

(If you have a question for Dr. Nason, write him in care of the Courier. If your question is of general interest, he will discuss it in his column.)

Measuring Stick Put on President Kennedy's First Year

(EDITOR'S NOTE—No President ever took office with more precise ideas of what kind of a President he wanted to be. How has John F. Kennedy measured up to his own vision? This is the first of five articles appraising the Kennedy record, by a seasoned Washington reporter who covered his 1960 campaign.)

By ARTHUR EDSON
(AP Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON — How is John F. Kennedy doing as President? It has been a year since his election, and 11 months since his move into the White House.

Has Kennedy gone forward with the daring, imaginative leadership he said this country so desperately needed?

Or, as some disenchanted Kennedy enthusiasts of 1960 now suggest, has his administration compromised so frequently it has, in their view out — Eisenhowered Dwight D. Eisenhower's?

Latching on to any political fact can be as difficult as picking up a wet watermelon seed.

Problem Gets Tougher

But here the problem is tougher. Talk to the men around Kennedy—as this reporter has—and the answer is almost always the same: He is doing exceptionally sponse is exactly the opposite: The New Frontier is floundering; Kennedy already is a failure.

If one dares to mention that the administration pushed considerable legislation through Congress, the answer comes quickly: These bills have been kicking around for years, and any Democrat, moving into the White House, supported by a Democratic Congress, would have gotten as much.

The very vehemence of their replies suggests that neither side is too sure of its ground, that each fears there's some truth in the other's argument.

Anyone judging Kennedy's progress has to keep in mind that it is an ingrained political habit to see everything as all good or all evil.

But some confusion can be traced directly to Kennedy and the type of campaign he waged. Goes Far Beyond

For he not only made the usual promises — accurately called "campaign oratory" by Wendell Wilkie—but he also went far beyond. Repeatedly, almost constantly, he talked of the ideal president.

Few men ever pursued the presidency so openly and persistently. None ever entered the Kennedy pictured an alert, aggressive, positive leadership that would move this country forward again and gain the admiration of the whole non-Communist world.

Only two days before the election, his thoughts now firmly crystallized, he spoke at the Coliseum in New York City.

"I want to be a president," Kennedy said, "who has the confidence of the people—and who takes the people into his confidence—who lets them know what he is doing and where we are going, who is for his program and who is against. I hope to set before the people our unfinished agenda—to indicate their obligations—and not simply follow their every whim and pleasure. . . . 'In Every Sense'

"I want to be a president who is the chief executive in every sense of the word."

Here Kennedy came up with one of the most far-reaching promises ever made in a business renowned for over-reaching itself.

"I am not promising action in the first 100 days alone," he said. "I am promising you 1,000 days of exacting presidential leadership."

Well, he started out as if he meant every word of it.

His eloquent inaugural speech—

tration had a chance to get shaken down properly, came April 17 and the Cuban invasion—a shocking, humiliating failure that was heard, and denounced, around the world.

"If I am elected next Tuesday," Kennedy had said in his New York speech, "I want to be a president known—at the end of four years—as one who not only held back the Communist tide but advanced the course of freedom and rebuilt American prestige—not by words but by doing great deeds as a good neighbor—not by tours and conferences abroad, but by vitality and direction at home."

A mighty high standard, maybe too high for these clamorous, uncertain times.

Disillusionment was bound to come.

Yet Kennedy judged the Eisenhower administration by these standards, and he asked that he be judged by them, too.

And so, as in subsequent stories we examine where he has failed and where he has succeeded, we'll have Kennedy's own high view of the office to guide us.

Four Injured At Broadwell

Leo J. Mamman, driver of the car, his wife, Jewell, daughter, Mrs. Louella Shirley, and her small son, were thrown clear of the auto by the impact when the train ripped into the front end of the car, whirled it around and into a utility pole.

All four were rushed to Abraham Lincoln Memorial hospital for treatment. All were released except Mrs. Mamman who was admitted with an injury to her left foot.

Mamman reportedly was watching the flashing lights on the GM&O Railroad crossing, which indicated a train approaching, and was unaware of the Terminal train's approach. The accident was spotted by the Illinois State Police patrol plane whose pilot notified troopers on the ground who investigated.

Prices Drag in

Stock Dealings

For Wednesday

NEW YORK (U) — Stock market trading continued to drag early this afternoon as prices followed an irregular course.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was down 0.30 at 281.50 with industrials down 0.30, rails down 0.20 and utilities down 0.30.

Some prices started to move higher here and there, giving the list a somewhat firmer tone. Most changes were fractional.

Popular averages are at their lowest level since early November. Business news remains good with November personal income at a new high and new orders and sales rising for durable goods producers, but the market was slow to respond to these normally bullish factors.

Motors took on a healthier look with Ford ahead more than 2. Youngstown Sheet held a gain of about 1 in a mixed steel section and most other groups also were well scrambled.

American Telephone, Union Carbide and American Tobacco rose about 1, while Du Pont moved ahead more than 2 and Amerasia nearly 4. Other chemicals lost ground.

Oils responded only sporadically to news of higher home heating oil prices. Jersey Standard and Royal Dutch were slightly higher, Texaco and Indiana Standard slightly lower.

Airlines were steady. Rails were weak.

Also killed in the crash were Lloyd Palmer, 45, and Kathleen Smith, 37, both of nearby Irvine. Each is survived by five children.

The elder Mr. and Mrs. Campman, who live near Irvine, were hosts Sunday at a dinner for their son, daughter-in-law, and five granddaughters.

Their son and his family then climbed into their station wagon for the 30-mile trip back to their home at Falconer.

They had gone about five miles when the crash occurred. State police, reconstructing the tragedy, said an auto driven by Mrs. Smith swung left to go around a car ahead and smashed headon into the station wagon.

Palmer was riding with Mrs. Smith. Other passengers were Palmer's daughter, Mary, 15; William Slocum, 37, of Irvine, and his wife, Dorothy, 33. They also are hospitalized with injuries.

Downtrend In Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Mixed prices prevailed as stock market trading drew near its end for 1961 early this afternoon. Trading was very heavy.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 30 to 262.60 with industrials down .70, rails off .10 and utilities up .10. Gains and losses of fractions to about a point were the rule for most key stocks.

The market will be closed Monday for New Year's.

Disappointment with the failure of a strong year-end rally to materialize mingled with hopes and fears for market prospects in early 1962.

Bowl Roundup

body puncher who wears "em down," but in Monday's Rose Bowl game UCLA may prove a foe with an iron stomach.

As both New Year's day rivals shadow-boxed in final formal practice today, the impression grew that this 48th Rose Bowl game could be the tightest Pasadena struggle since 1958 when Don Sutherland's field goal gave Ohio State a 10-7 victory over Oregon.

Neither team has thrown the "long bomb" or used any fancy stuff — Minnesota in fashioning a 7-2 record and UCLA in finishing with 7-3.

Favorable weather is predicted for Monday's game, provided the wind doesn't shift and huff in a storm front strung across the Pacific.

COTTON BOWL

Dallas, Tex. — Mississippi wouldn't be surprised if it not only had the top 1-2 passing punch in the nation's college football but the 1-2-3.

It's a matter of great concern for Texas, which must try to handle this trio — Doug Elmore, Flynn Griffing and Perry Lee Dunn — when the Rebels and Longhorns square off Monday in the Cotton Bowl.

A summary of Mississippi's 10 games, of which the Rebs won nine, shows this quarterback situation is a 1-2-3 punch in the true tradition. If one falls the next comes through and if both should be off the third man steps in.

For the record Elmore passed for 741 yards and six touchdowns with a 59.5 completion average. Griffing had 785 yards and 10 touchdowns and a 50.5 average and Dunn had 301 yards and three touchdowns with a 48.1 average.
